

ESTABLISHED IN 1969, STERNS & WEINROTH HAS made a mission of providing highly efficient, cost effective and personalized services to its clients. This 35-lawyer Trenton firm prides itself on its proactive and individualized philosophy; Sterns & Weinroth attorneys tailor their myriad skill sets, versatility and extensive experience to the specific needs of each client. Says founder Joel Sterns, "We're committed to establishing long-term client relationships, and we share a common vision of client service, which is why the firm's attorneys have practiced together for so many years. Interestingly, most of the firm's lawyers have enjoyed success with large law firms, but made conscious decisions to maintain their sophisticated practices in a more personal setting with Sterns & Weinroth." As such, the firm is pleased to have five directors — founding director Sterns, managing director William Bigham, director Simon Kimmelman, director Frank Petrino and director Susan Stryker — honored as Super Lawyers.

Sterns & Weinroth's founding directors established a practice with fundamental ties to state and local government, and the firm maintains a thorough, first-hand knowledge of inner regulatory and legislative workings. Moreover, according to William Bigham, "A great majority of our lawyers have served as judicial clerks for some of the finest jurists in New Jersey. Our attorneys include a former Chief Counsel to New Jersey Governor Richard Hughes, who served as counsel and mentor to the firm for many years; a former Assistant Counsel to New Jersey Governor William Cahill; former deputy attorneys general; and officers and directors of numerous county, state and national bar associations." With this impressive record, it's no wonder that Sterns & Weinroth retains an accomplished practice in five primary areas: administrative/governmental, bankruptcy/creditors' rights, gaming, litigation, and real estate/transactional law. These extend to further specializations, including employment, equine, lobbying and public contract law issues, insurance regulatory law, insolvency law, corporate law, and land development and redevelopment. Sterns & Weinroth litigators also maintain stellar reputations in the following areas: business and commercial, construction, employment, environmental, equine, family and matrimonial, insolvency, insurance, intellectual property, product liability, and negligence and professional liability law.

A paradigm of legal distinction for nearly four decades, Sterns & Weinroth continues its pledge to exceptional performance. Says Bigham, "All of the attorneys named as Super Lawyers have remained together essentially since the start of their legal careers. The friendships we've forged have helped us maintain an extraordinary organization, and our peers and clients regard us as providers of excellent legal services."
